

My Time at AAUW.

Aanisah Duru

Grad Student
ASI-COE Representative

310-243-3686
asicoe@csudh.edu

Dear College of Education,

AAUW hosted hundreds of motivated college women from around the country for leadership training, inspiration and networking at our National Conference for College Women Student Leaders (NCCWSL). The conference brought women from universities across the country, creating a diverse tapestry of backgrounds and experiences.

After settling into the dormitories at the University of Maryland, I quickly found myself surrounded by like-minded individuals eager to learn and grow. The shared accommodations fostered a sense of camaraderie and friendship among us, setting the stage for an unforgettable weekend.

The conference included seminars and lectures led by accomplished women from various fields including higher education, business, and technology. Each session offered valuable insights and practical advice on leadership, career advancement, and personal development.

I had the privilege to attend seminars given by inspiring women who shared their journeys and expertise. From strategies for navigating male-dominated industries to harnessing the power of networking, every session left me feeling empowered and motivated.

Beyond the lectures, the conference offered a chance to explore the historic landmarks of Washington, D.C. such as the Abraham Lincoln monument and the White House. My weekend at the AAUW Leadership Conference was a testament to the power of women coming together to learn, inspire, and lead. It was an honor to be part of this dynamic community, and I look forward to applying what I've learned to make a positive impact in my own journey and in the lives of others.

Sincerely,

AAnisah Duru

