

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Our mission is to cultivate students' diverse creative voices through the mediums of film, TV, and media. Students graduate equipped to interpret existing media stories and to contribute new and necessary ones.

Our innovative program integrates critical thinking and critical making. Students take courses in storytelling across media forms, developing foundational knowledge and analytical skills. Building on that coursework, students learn how to develop their own film, TV, and media stories.

Upon completing the degree, students have a deep understanding of what stories have been told and what is missing and are empowered to contribute their own voices.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The Film, Television, and Media B.A. provides pathways for students interested in working in the industry, attending graduate school, or both. The critical thinking and making skills our students acquire prepare them for a wide array of career opportunities in entertainment. FTVM alumni have landed jobs at some of the top agencies, content aggregators, and studios. These include:

- Gersh Agency
- United Talent Agency
- NBC Universal
- Paramount
- Netflix
- and more...
